American taxpayers are quite interested in knowing how banks have used the money that Treasury has invested under the Capital Purchase Program (CPP). To answer that question, Treasury is seeking responses that describe generally how the CPP investment has affected the operation of your business. We understand that once received, the cash associated with TARP funding is indistinguishable from other cash sources, unless the funds were segregated, and therefore it may not be feasible to identify precisely how the CPP investment was deployed or how many CPP dollars were allocated to each use. Nevertheless, we ask you to provide as much information as you can about how you have used the capital Treasury has provided, and how your uses of that capital have changed over time. Treasury will be pairing this survey with a summary of certain balance sheet and other financial data from your institution's regulatory filings, so to the extent you find it helpful to do so, please feel free to refer to your institution's quarterly call reports to illustrate your answers. This is your opportunity to speak to the taxpayers in your own words, which will be posted on our website.

What specific ways did your institution utilize CPP capital? Check all that apply and elaborate as appropriate, especially if the uses have shifted over time. Your responses should reflect actions taken over the past year (or for the portion of the year in which CPP funds were outstanding).

What actions were you able to avoid because of the capital infusion of CPP funds?

Without the funds, the Bank would have needed to seriously contract lending and business activities in the Bank's market area. As the only community based Bank in our rural county, the funds help provide stability to the Bank in uncertain economic and regulatory times.

What actions were you able to take that you may not have taken without the capital infusion of CPP funds?

With the capital infusion, the Bank has been able to continue to serve the local community in difficult economic times. Although, the Bank is limited in its ability to lend, the funds have allowed the Bank to continue to service existing small business customers as well as provide funds for permanent single family lending which might not have occurred otherwise.

Please describe any other actions that you were able to undertake with the capital infusion of CPP funds.
